ABOUT US

WHO WE ARE

The UCN PI School of Environmental and Waste Management is the universities body for delivering the environmental management and waste management programmes of long-distance and blended education provided by UCN International Programs worldwide.

The School of Environmental and Waste Management of the Universidad Central de Nicaragua International Programs is bound to offer a variety of specific programmes in the study areas of Environmental Auditing and Management, Eco-Management, Waste Management and Waste Water Management, Clean Technologies, Remediation Technologies, and Energy Management.

The Board of Directors of UCN International Programs - in an extraordinary session held on June 3, 2008 - appointed Gerhard Berchtold, Akad.Exp.-Kfm., PGDipEDM, MBA, MPA, MA, PhD, as head of the School of Environmental and Waste Management and empowered him to make effective programmes decisions - including with course providers - in line with all good practices of the bona-fide higher education standards.

Vision

To promote and disseminate the practice and science of sustainable environmental and waste management globally.

Mission

The vision will be accomplished by providing the practical, technical and scientific skills and higher degree qualifications in the areas of environmental and waste management and sustainable development for the protection of the environment.

The objective of the UCN PI School of Environmental and Waste Management is to offer flexible, country- and company-specific individualised degree-opportunities to busy professionals by means of e-learning and long-distance education.

The UCN PI School of Environmental and Waste Management is the professional and scientific education provider for environmental and waste management professionals globally. The UCN PI School of Environmental and Waste Management provides the professional educational degree programmes for individuals working in the environmental and waste management sectors.
